

The Death Penalty in North Texas

(As of December 1, 2017)

- New death sentences in Texas have dropped dramatically since peaking in 1999, when juries sentenced 48 people to death. Since 2017, prosecutors in Texas have sought death in seven cases, resulting in four new death sentences.
- Although Dallas and Tarrant Counties are among Texas' top sentencing counties, Dallas County has not accounted for any new death sentences since 2013. Tarrant County went more than two years without imposing any new death sentences.
- This year, prosecutors in Dallas County pursued the death penalty in two capital murder trials; both ended with sentences of life in prison without parole.
- A jury in Tarrant County rejected the death penalty in a capital murder trial in October.
- Of the 10 men sentenced to death in Dallas or Tarrant County since 2011, 9 are African American.
- Since 1973, 160 individuals – including 13 people in Texas – have been released from death rows nationwide due to evidence of their wrongful conviction. This includes Randall Dale Adams, who spent more than a decade in prison after he was wrongfully convicted of killing a Dallas Police officer, and Michael Toney, who was wrongfully convicted in Tarrant County and released in 2009.
- More than 45 men in Dallas County have been exonerated of other serious crimes since 2001; many of those exonerations were based on DNA evidence.
- Collectively, 40 people sentenced to death in Dallas or Tarrant County have been removed from death row; in most cases, their sentences were commuted.
- The State of Texas has executed 545 people since 1982. This includes 56 people who were convicted and sentenced to death in Dallas County and 40 people who were convicted in Tarrant County.
- In 2017, Texas put 7 people to death, out of 21 executions nationwide. Three of these individuals were convicted in Dallas or Tarrant County.
- Currently, there are 232 people on death row in Texas, including 6 women. Of these, 27 were convicted in Dallas County and 17 were convicted in Tarrant County.
