

The Death Penalty in Dallas County

- With 108 total death sentences since 1974, Dallas ranks second behind Harris County in use of the death penalty in Texas.
- Although it remains among Texas's top sentencing counties, Dallas County juries have imposed just one death sentence since 2013.
- Of the 10 individuals currently on death row who were convicted in Dallas, five are Black, one is Hispanic/Latino, and four are white.
- Dallas voters strongly support alternatives to the death penalty, according to a poll conducted in June 2021 by the independent research firm Public Policy Polling. When asked which punishment they preferred for people convicted of first-degree murder, 75% of respondents opted for a sentence of life in prison with a possibility of parole after 20 or 40 years or life in prison without parole. Only 14% of all respondents prefer the death penalty.
- The State of Texas has executed 600 people since 1982. This includes 67 people who were convicted in Dallas County, including James Broadnax, who was executed on April 30, 2026.
- Since 1973, more than 200 individuals – including 18 people in Texas – have been released from death rows nationwide due to evidence of their wrongful conviction. Randall Dale Adams spent more than a decade in prison after he was wrongly convicted of killing a Dallas police officer.
- More than 65 individuals in Dallas County have been exonerated of serious crimes since 2001, largely on the basis of DNA evidence and/or mistaken eyewitness identification.
- 30 people sentenced to death in Dallas County are no longer on death row; in most cases, their sentences were changed to life in prison or life in prison without parole or they died in custody of natural causes.
- In January of 2026, Dallas County posthumously declared Tommy Lee Walker, aged 19 when wrongfully convicted, as innocent. Mr. Walker was executed in 1956 at the age of 21.
- Currently, there are 165 people on death row in Texas, including 7 women. Of this total population, 10 cases came from Dallas County.
